WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28, 1893.

"Notwithstanding all the talk to the contrary," said a Democratic Senator, who has a reputation for going straight at any point he wishes to reach, and little patience with those who adopt a roundabout route, "this administration is going to issue bonds; and nobody knows it any better than Mr. Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, and in my opinion they will issue them before the first of July." That seems to be the opinion of all those who have given the subject any study and it is probable that the present attitude of the administration on the subject was assumed for the purpose of being able to meet the criticisms certain to be made when it becomes certain that bonds will be issued by the statement that all other suggested expedients had been tried and that their failure had compelled the issue of bonds. Indeed, it has been positively asserted by a personal friend of Secretary Carlisle that Mr. Cleveland wanted to issue $50,000,000 of bonds last week and would have done so had not Mr. Carlisle stood so firmly against it and finally told him that he might get another Secretary of the Treasury to issue them, as he would not until everything else had been tried.

Mr. Cleveland's proposition to the Wall street men to borrow $50,000,000 in gold from them for one year at 3 per cent. interest, and in default of payment at the end of the year to issue bonds for that amount did not strike the average mind as a very brilliant one. It was declined, however, because the Wall street men did not wish to take any chances about bonds; they want them issued and will not help the Treasury unless they are issued, or a definite promise made that they will be issued at a stated time. There is a disposition to criticize Mr. Cleveland for having taken this financial business into his own hands, but as a distinguished Republican Senator remarked, "It is Cleveland and not Carlisle who will be held responsible for the success or failure of the financial policy adopted by the administration."

It is stated by those who know what is going on inside administration circles that the reason for the Democratic attack on reciprocity, which Mr. Cleveland and his advisers have made up their minds to destroy, by annulling all the treaties made by the Harrison administration, is that it stands in the way of putting sugar and coffee back on the dutiable list, from which they were taken by a Republican Congress. No duty can be levied upon sugar or coffee coming from any country which has a treaty granting their free entry into the United States; hence the determination to wipe out the treaties. The programme is for the administration to get all the reciprocity treaties out of the way before Congress gets ready to pass the administration tariff bill, which is to put a duty upon sugar, coffee and probably tea. The small wage earners and farmers of the country cannot fail to appreciate at its full value this bit of Democratic statesmanship, which will materially increase their living expenses with no possibility of benefiting them to even the slightest extent.

Ex-Congressman McKinney, of New Hampshire, who wanted to be Commissioner of Pensions, has been given the comparatively insignificant position of Minister to Colombia, while ex-Congressman Thompson, of California, gets the Brazilian mission, and Wiley, of New York, the consular post at Bordeaux. That rule against appointing "ex's" has been laid on the shelf, along with other rules which were violated almost as soon as they were announced.

The government is being run just now with only one member of the cabinet, Secretary Smith, in town, the rest of them, with the exception of Secretary Lamont, who remained in New York, being on the way to Chicago with Mr. Cleveland to attend the opening of the World's Fair. The office seekers went somewhere, lots of them didn't have money enough left to go far, to wait for the return of the appointing powers, as they have completely disappeared from Washington for the first time since the assembling of Congress, last December. Mr. Cleveland is expected to return next Tuesday, when the office seekers can make a fresh start.

Among the five government directors of the Union Pacific Railway Co. appointed this week, were Hon. Don Dickinson, the gentleman who has been posing as the Warwick of the administration and who said that he declined to enter the cabinet, and Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia, who it is said did not ask for this or any other Federal appointment, being an avowed candidate for the U. S. Senate from his State. Some think that he was given this position to make him withdraw from the Senatorial contest, but there is no reason why it should have that effect. It will be easy enough for him to resign this place if he can get elected to the Senate, which will be by no means easy, as he has the liveliest sort of opposition.
